

BANQUET & AWARDS CEREMONY

15 September 2017

South Africans love a good celebration and on Friday, 15 September 2017, SANEA joined forces with key stakeholders to applaud remarkable achievements! This prestigious awards ceremony and banquet was hosted by Brian Statham, Chairman of the South African National Energy Association (SANEA).

This was a time to get-together; a time to collaborate in singing the praises of the many South Africans who are using their personal ingenuity to change the face of energy in South Africa. We know these people because they are changing our lives for the better.

Statham paid tribute to the many men and women who are striving daily to ensure that South Africa enjoys a sound and secure energy future. "SANEA's Vision of 'Thinking Energy' is alive as we come together to congratulate these winners."

"What stands out is that each recipient was determined to make a difference; to do something that would positively influences the lives of those around them. All of them were determined to achieve success and they demonstrated a "Passion for Excellence", remarked Statham.

"Through exceptional performance we can demonstrate what is possible; we can set the standard for a new reality that will deliver the social and economic development necessary for South Africans to enjoy a prosperous future. Those who are being recognized tonight have embarked on this journey. They have set the benchmark for a new reality. They are an inspiration to us all. We acknowledge and salute their efforts in the belief that their achievements will inspire others", said Statham.

We are very pleased that the South African National Energy Development Institute (SANEDI) has again chosen to collaborate with SANEA in recognizing South Africans and their achievements, specifically by promoting awards in the research and innovation sectors.
