

Dr Tobias Bischof-Niemz
Head of the Energy Centre
Council for Scientific and Industrial Research (CSIR)

Dr Tobias Bischof-Niemz is the Head of the Energy Centre at the Council for Scientific and Industrial Research (CSIR) in Pretoria, where he leads the Council's energy research and a growing team of scientists and engineers. Before joining the CSIR, he was with South Africa's electric utility Eskom in the Energy Planning Unit, where he was part of the team that developed the long-term power-capacity expansion plan (Integrated Resource Plan – IRP) for South Africa.

Dr Bischof-Niemz is member of the Ministerial Advisory Council on Energy (MACE) that advises Minister Joemat-Pettersson on long-term, strategic energy topics.
