PwC Africa Oil & Gas Review Learning to Leapfrog

PwC's 7th review of activity and developments in the African oil & gas industry factors in the views of oil & gas industry participants operating in the African continent.

It includes the experience of international oil companies, national oil companies, and other industry stakeholders to shed light on the key challenges and opportunities facing the sector.

"Africa continues to offer a plethora of opportunities to explore for hydrocarbons in the frontier market. New hydrocarbon provinces are popping up regularly; Mauritania and Senegal are good examples where hydrocarbon have recently been discovered. To date, the African oil and gas industry continues to play catch-up with the rest of the world. But what if there was another way? What if African oil and gas companies could side-step the competition by doing things differently?"

At PwC we believe that African oil and gas companies should be 'learning to leapfrog'...
